may require much closer links between coronary care units and cardiac x ray suites but it is difficult to separate such admissions to coronary care units from general medical admissions and to send them direct to off site regional cardiac centres. Currently I think that coronary angioplasty with off site surgical back up makes the best use of the facilities we have.

