

Anticoagulant prescribing in atrial fibrillation (AF) and incident dementia

Patients who took DOACs for treatment of AF were less likely to be diagnosed with dementia and mild cognitive impairment compared to those receiving VKAs.